FRIDAY..... JULY 4, 1884.

FOR PRESIDENT.

JAS. G. BLAINE,
OF MAINE.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT.

JOHN A. LOGAN.
OF ILLINOIS.

THE FOURTH.

The sun rises this morning to adorn the one hundred and eighth anniversary of the greatest event in the history of the American Nation. It is unnecessary to dwell upon the circumstances which brought about the Declaration of Independence, by which the colonies renounced their allegiance to the mother country, nor to the intervening events which made it a free and independent nation. They are familiar to every school-boy in the land. The Republic, which sprung Phoenix-like from the ashes of the Revolutionary War, was an experiment the success of which has doubtless exceeded the fondest anticipations of its wise builders. Its power, its valor, and the principles of its construction have been put to severe tests, but it has always come out victorious, until it stands to-day the peer of the greatest nations of the world, and the great problem of the power of man for self-government, which had always been denied before its existence, has long been conceded, through its example, to have become an established fact. There appears to be no limit to the possibilities which our country may achieve. Since the close of the war of the Rebellion it has bounded on the high wave of prosperity with a speed that would have been deemed incredible at the beginning of this decade. Conservative men have shaken their heads in fear lest the country were going ahead too fast, and have continually predicted dire disaster close at hand, but they have been doomed to agreeable disappointments. The vast resources of the country are being developed more rapidly than ever before. Manufactures are increasing, millions of acres of land are being utilized every year and adding to our cereal production, our mineral wealth is being developed, and as one industry contributes to or thrives upon another, all are progressing and bounding on. The continent is being gridironed with railroads to meet the necessities for the transportation of our products, and villages of a few years since are cities to-day. It is not a boom but the "march of progress" on the double quick. Neither the present generation nor the one to follow will see it come to a halt. Such results could only have been achieved by a free people, stimulated to exertion by the fact that under our form of government they are guaranteed the profits of their individual enterprise. In viewing this grand Temple of Liberty, every industrious citizen of the Republic can hold up his head with the proud consciousness that he has contributed to its construction. The laying of its cornerstone should ever be commemorated, that the principles of which it is the repository may never be lost sight of.

The Senate yesterday, upon motion of Miller, of California, took up and passed the amended Chinese Restriction bill by a vote of 43 to 12. This vexed subject is finally disposed of, and can ent no further figure in politics for some years to come. The JOURNAL predicts that public sentiment will be such when the time comes for a renewal of the Prohibition Act that the vote in Congress will be almost unanimous for it.

The President Wednesday vetoed the Fitz John Porter bill. The House immediately took up the bill and passed it over the veto. Yesterday it went to the Senate, where it was killed by a vote of 27 to 27, the necessary vote to pass it being 34. The vote was substantially the same as on the passage of the bill.

The Agent's Herald, a paper devoted to the exposure of swindling advertisers, publishes the "Rochester Silk Co.," alias "Osgoodby," as swindlers and states that the crazy patch work pieces are not worth the postage expended in sending them. Our readers will be governed accordingly.

On Wednesday the House refused to consider any of the Public Building bills, which, we are sorry to note, practically defeats the passage of any bill for Nevada.

The woods are full of Democrats who intend to vote for Blaine.

In Minnesota several girls are railroad station agents.

Everything is quiet at Chicago.

THE VICE-PRESIDENCY.

Four times within the last forty-three years the Vice Presidency has proved of more importance to the country than the intended Presidency during the same respective terms. Of the nine Presidents elected since 1840, four, or nearly one-half, have vacated the office by death and left it to their constitutional successors. These Vice Presidents have occupied the executive chair fourteen years out of the forty-three, or nearly one-third of the time. As two of the four Presidents have died from assassination, and as cranks have been captured from time to time who were plotting the murder of others, the lives of Presidents are becoming a very uncertain quantity. Now it is a fact that there was a great deal of carelessness about the nomination of all of these lucky Vice Presidents. They were the creatures of accident almost as much in the lower as in the higher office.

Tyler was a friend of Henry Clay who wept when the great statesman was defeated in convention in 1840, and his nomination on the ticket with Harrison was a sop to the disappointed Clay men. Fillmore in 1850 was nominated for the same reason. Clay had been defeated again and Fillmore was taken because he had been defeated as the Clay candidate for Governor in 1844. Andrew Johnson was given the nomination in 1864 that Hannibal Hamlin had fairly earned, because President Lincoln thought the selection of a Southern loyal Democrat would strip the combat of every sectional aspect and be an assurance to the people of the South of the kindly intentions of the Administration toward them. These three men proved faithless to the principles on which they were elected. Tyler became a Democrat, and in 1844 assisted to defeat the man over whose failure in convention he had shed such copious tears four years before.

When Fillmore became President, the policy of Taylor in regard to the question of slavery in the New Mexican territory was abandoned, and the result was the endorsement of the compromise measures which sealed the fate of the Whig party and opened an agitation which was only to be closed by a bloody war. Johnson proved himself unfit for the position, and kept the nation in a tempest with his wild and unpractical "my policy."

Gen. Arthur's nomination was not less an accident, as it turned upon the selection of Garfield for President, who was himself a dark horse. Arthur was little known outside of his own State, and his selection was a surprise to the country. But it proved to be good "practical politics," for it drew Grant, Cushing and other influential and able men into the canvass, while Arthur, himself a most sagacious and indefatigable politician, took the management of the canvass in his own State, and won the victory by cutting down the Democratic vote in New York below all former figures. Mr. Arthur's administration has been much wiser and more successful than that of any other accidental President. If the record of the Vice Presidency teaches the voters anything of importance, it teaches those who have come to look upon the principles and purposes of the two parties as but little at variance, and who are therefore likely to be governed in their choice largely by the character and qualifications of the men put in nominations, to look well to the Vice Presidency also.

It was in the Congressional sessions of 1867-69 that Mr. Blaine took a prominent position as a Congressman in requiring the English Government to honor the claims of Irishmen who had become naturalized citizens of the United States—much against the wish of England it was, too. Irishmen will remember the case of Costello et al., arrested in Ireland for alleged treasonable utterances against England. Costello, a naturalized American, was tried and sent to Millbank Prison. But Mr. Blaine raised the question of the right of England to do so, and so worked it up in Congress that Great Britain released from her policy and liberated Costello.

The House of Representatives yesterday adjourned until Saturday. The Senate will meet to-day, listen to the reading of the Declaration of Independence and George Washington's farewell address and then adjourn.

Mr. Tilden says he will not be a candidate for the Presidency. But just for the fun of the thing we should like to see the Democratic Convention nominate the old man.

Some of the Democratic newspapers are cultivating a flower for the Presidency. It is R. P. (real pretty) but is not of hardy growth.

The Alta says:

If the Chicago Convention will give us Stephen J. Field as the Democratic nominee for President of the United States, we pledge him the electoral vote of California by ten thousand majority, and that of Oregon and Nevada by proportionate majorities.

The Arizona papers say that Governor Tritle is going to work the Lynx Creek placers. It is estimated that $500,000 has been taken from this creek, in the vicinity of Prescott.

Hon. G. W. Cassidy has secured a Congressional appropriation of $1,000 to move the remains of soldiers buried at Fort Churchill, Nevada, to the Grand Army Cemetery at Carson City.

Chief Justice Hawley was in town last evening and will return to the Capitol this morning.

BLAINE'S STRENGTH.

Why the People Like Blaine and Will Elect Him.

The people like Blaine partly because he is a hearty, cordial, unaffected, agreeable man. Nobody can be in his society for half an hour without being entertained and impressed. He is genial and unaffected. Even when he is acting he is true to nature, and carries his auditor along.

As a party man Blaine is just as whole souled as he is in a coterie of his cronies. He is for the regular nomination every time, and nobody ever heard him talk of bolting the ticket. Though he was too shrewd and too broad to like Grant, he never opposed him except when the third term conspiracy came up, and then Blaine lifted his big fist and let him have it between the eyes; after which the third term was heard of no longer.

But all this does not suffice to account for Mr. Blaine. It does not fully explain his speed and bottom. The secret is not there. Moreover, while these things are necessary to his power among men, they do not constitute it. They are the foundation, and the edifice towers above. The inner soul of Blaine is his intense Americanism. He is American through and through, bone, fiber, and finger nails. He always flies the American flag, and the American eagle perches on his shoulder. To the hereditary antagonist, foe, and rival of the United States, to England, his flag is never lowered, not even in ceremony.

Civilization and intelligence constantly tend to obliterate barbarism and barbarous impulses; but we suppose that in the heart of every American of revolutionary descent, fed on the memories of that momentous struggle, educated in the Fourth of July orations of thirty-five years ago, there lurks, notwithstanding all the effects of culture and Christianity, a certain animosity towards the mother country towards England. The feeling is not so strong, of course, as that which prevails in all Irishmen; but it is strong, nevertheless. This sentimental Blaine represents and embodies, and it makes him friends who would never be his friends otherwise.

Those politicians, Independents and Democrats, who imagine that this sort of inborn passion, avowed or hidden, is a thing that can be despised in a Presidential canvass, do not consider the facts with adequate wisdom. Mr. Blaine is a much more difficult candidate to deal with successfully than those who judge from superficial indications may believe.—N. Y. Sun (Dem.).

An American Citizen Drafted Into the French Army.

Jean Dibant a native of France was naturalized last January by Judge Wilson. Some time ago he went to France and was drafted into the army. He claimed that he was an American citizen and showed his naturalization papers. The French authorities discovered that Dibant's whole name was Jean Bernard, and consequently refused to release him. In this dilemma he wrote to the two witnesses to his papers and yesterday they appeared before Judge Rearden. After hearing their testimony, that the applicant was generally known in this city as Jean Dibant, the Court made an order reforming the records by adding "Bernard" to the name. Proper papers will be forwarded at once to the French-American citizens.

A California to Stump West Virginia.

A Chicago dispatch of July 2d says: George A. Knight, of California, arrived here this afternoon from his Eastern trip, where he spent the time since the Chicago Convention in looking over the situation. Mr. Knight visited Bienville at Augusta and found the Republican candidate confident and complacent and not disposed to look on the disaffection from the party as serious. Mr. Knight also spent some hours with General Logan in Washington, and at the latter's special request will take the stump in West Virginia in October. Mr. Knight will leave for San Francisco tomorrow.

Randall's Leadership.

A Washington dispatch of the 18th says:

Randall, in the House this morning, by a practically unanimous Democratic vote, secured the defeat of the Senate amendments to the Navy Appropriation bill, providing for the construction of seven new steel cruisers and the completion of the iron-clad monitors. There is but little doubt that the Senate will be compelled to recede from this amendment. The session is so far advanced and the desire for final adjournment is so universal that the Senate will not attempt to make a fight for its amendments to the Naval bill. The House, too, late in the day, concurred in the Senate to the Postoffice Appropriation bill, and this circumstance gives rise to the belief that an understanding has been reached for an amicable adjustment of the points in dispute between the two Houses on all bills, so that a final adjournment can be had not later than next Saturday. The Senate, by receding from its amendments to the Naval bill, will probably be able to secure the approval of its principal amendments to the other bills. The amendment to build new cruisers was rejected in the House by a vote of 90 to 147, and the amendment to complete the iron-clad monitors was defeated by a vote of 85 to 135. At no time during the present session of Congress has Randall's control of the majority been more clearly made manifest.

The threats of revenue reformers to depose Randall from his position of spokesman of his party, when with a handful of protectionists he defeated the Morrison Tariff bill, are proven to have been non-effective, and his control of the party in the House was never stronger than it is to-day.

HEADS OF GOLD.—Director of Mint Birchard states that the accumulation of gold bullion amounts to nearly $60,000,000, which is chiefly held in the Philadelphia Mint and the sub-Treasury in New York. This valuable storage is mainly due to the heavy imports of foreign gold into New York during the years 1880-81; the grand total received during those years reaching very near to $180,000,000.

AN AMERICAN CITIZEN DRAFTED INTO THE FRENCH ARMY.

Jean Dibant a native of France was naturalized last January by Judge Wilson. Some time ago he went to France and was drafted into the army. ## TOWN AND COUNTY.

BREVITIES.

No JOURNAL will be issued from this office to-morrow morning.

There will be a big time at Steamboat to-day.

D. A. Bender was over from Carson yesterday.

Pete Comstock was down from Boca yesterday.

Judge E. V. Spencer, of Susanville, is in town.

The registry books are now open at the Justice's office.

Will U. Mackey, an old-time printer, is in from Alturas.

Steve Popovich will go to the Bay to work for Chiełowich.

W. E. Lindsey has opened his marble works on Virginia street.

Frank and Ed. Merrill, of Peavine, are in to spend the Fourth.

Dickie Jose left for San Francisco, his future home, last evening.

A lady's gaitor was lost on the street Wednesday. See 50 cent column.

Frank Keitzie, of Peavine mine came in last evening to help celebrate the Fourth.

Mrs. John Bowman and children have gone on a ten days visit to Lommon's ranch at Peavine.

Herbert Coffin is in from Luning, and is as glad to see his old friends as they are to see him.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Coffin, of Luning, came in yesterday to remain a month visiting the old folks.

Wm. Reilly, of Long Valley, has sold his ranch to Jim Miller, of Sierra Valley, and will move his family to Reno.

P. H. Mulcahy did not accompany the excursion to Monterey in consequence of pressing business engagements.

Harris Bros., of Carson, secured the Prison contract. The only other bidders were Mallon and McMillan, of Virginia.

The ranchers of Nevada are now having fine weather for curing their hay. Thus far very little hay has been lost in this State.

Charley Chase has been employed to go to work at the Wine House, and those who drop in during the night watch will find him at his post.

Alvaro Evans made a sale this week of the Clover Valley ranch, owned by himself, Newt Evans and H. J. Pratt to Idaho parties for $160,000, getting $10,000 down.

The parties who hold a United States patent for a number of galena mines west of Washoe City will commence the work of developing the property some time this month.

Some of the mining stocks started in to celebrate yesterday. Norcross advanced to 3 30, Potosi to 95, Alta to 2 15, Chollar to 2 30, Bodie to 3 50, Navajo to 4 15. It looks as though there is to be a deal this summer.

Several farmers on the Meadows were in town yesterday and the day before looking for harvest hands. There are generally plenty of idle men around but they seem to be conveniently absent when the farmers are looking for them.

The pedestrian feat which Tom Hymers was to perform to-day, has been declared off. The little unpleasantness which occurred on the north side of the track the other day, finally terminated in a carrom on Hymers' nose, unfitting him for duty.

Wm. Thompson has developed what promises to be a valuable galena mine in the hills west of Steamboat. He will commence shipping ore from the mine to Salt Lake next week. He has three mines at work and expects to ship two or three weeks from this time on.

Mrs. M. S. Doten informs the public that she will open a private school for children of all ages, in the old school building, on Monday, July 7th, for a term of six weeks. Charges 50 cents per week. Reduction where there are more than one from the same family.

Charles Malby, the victim of the Hart-Malby difficulty, was reported decidedly better yesterday morning. His mind brightened up so that he recognized those around him, and answered all questions intelligently, something he had not done since the unfortunate affair occurred. His friends are naturally encouraged by the change and feel that there is a good chance for his ultimate recovery.

An Eye to Business.

Disguise it how we will there is more or less selfishness in the make-up of all mankind. There was a runaway north of the track day before yesterday. Ben Rafferty, the blacksmith was near by when the team started. The owner thought Rafferty might have stopped the team if he had been disposed to do so, and approaching Rafferty in a rather excited manner demanded to know why in thunder he didn't make an effort to stop the team.

"What on," said Rafferty, "that would have been a foolish thing for a man in my business to do."

"Well," said the teamster, "it wouldn't have hurt you much and might have saved me a great deal of trouble and expense."

"Very true, my dear man," replied Rafferty, in the bluntest manner possible, "but it wasn't business for me to do so I assure you. I am sorry that you should lose by the transaction, but it is an ill wind that blows nobody good, and your loss may be another's gain."

By the time this little speech was fairly completed the teamster was well out of hearing after his runaway team. A few hours later the wounded horses were turned over to a veterinary surgeon and the fragments of the wagon were dumped at the door of a blacksmith shop for repairs. Yesterday the teamster called around to see how the work was getting on, and to his amazement found the workmen just putting on the finishing touches with Mr. Rafferty bossing the job.

"Is this your shop, sir?" angrily demanded the teamster.

"This is where I do business," replied Rafferty, "and I am pleased to say that everything in the shop is paid for."

"And you are the man that stood supinely by and witnessed my misfortune when it was within your power to prevent it?"

"You see," pointing to the reconstructed wagon, "as I told you before, it wasn't exactly business for me to interfere in transaction of that kind."

"I see, and if I had known this before I would have taken the work to Sacramento if I couldn't have got it done anywhere else."

"It would have been all the same, I assure you. There is a community of interests among blacksmiths the same as among teamsters, and as the work has to be done if one don't get it another does, and it's all the same in the end. In this particular instance, considering the circumstances, I will make the bill so light that it will astonish you. Two days work for three men, and I will only charge you $—."

"That is fair enough, and here is your money, but don't you ever do that again or you will lose my trade."

"I never indulge myself, but the boys will accompany you around the corner and square the yards," and as the trio moved off down street the teamster was heard to remark, "Well he's a good one."

He Wanted a Filler.

Last evening as the west-bound train was halted at the depot, and while the passengers were eating their dinners, or promenading, according to their pleasure, an English tourist came out from the dining room and stepping up to the bar asked the bartender:

"'Ave you any good whisky?"
"There is, you can try it," replied Bob.

The tourist examined the bottle, held it up to the light, and then poured out a four fingered horn into a tumbler, which underwent the same inspection. He then took from his inner coat pocket a flask which was about half filled with toddy that had evidently "stood the pump" several times since he left New York, and, sizing them up as a gambler stacks his checks, he asked:

"'Ave you a filler?"
"A filler?" said Bob viewing the tumbler, and thinking his customer had a pretty good "filler" already.

"Ya-a-s! a filler, yer know, to pour it into the flasks, yer know."

"Oh, its a funnel, you want isn't it?"
"By jove, yer know, that's it."

Bob handed him the funnel which he stuck into the flask, and poured the whisky into it, and reaching into his pocket, after considerable trouble he fished out a dime and walked out.

The remark which Bob made was entirely scriptural.

The Truckee by Moonlight.

The view of the Truckee river from the bridge, these delicious moonlight nights, is charming and romantic. The dashing of the water over the rocks, seems to fill it with white caps, which the shimmer of the moon's rays turns to glistening silver. The rapids above appear to be the source of the water flow, and in the distance look like a broad spring bursting up out of the ground. The sight is well worth the attention of evening promenaders.

County Finances.

On the 1st day of June there was a cash balance in the Treasury of $16,459.78. The receipts for the month were $1,367.94. There was paid out on warrants in June $5,420.46, leaving cash in the Treasury July 1st, $12,407.26.

Renewby Gas Light.

We doubt if there is as quiet and orderly a town in the State, after dark, as is Reno. The evening hours, when most men have ceased their daily labors and seek relaxation, each according to his own inclination, are in most of our towns characterized by noisy hilarity and frequently by drunken brawls and angry disputes which often lead to bloodshed. But in Reno when the sun goes down behind the distant western mountains, and the lights glimmer in her household windows, and the rumbling of vehicles has ceased, the town sinks into a quietude that is rarely disturbed. The streets are thronged with women and children promenading or chatting quietly, the shop windows are brilliantly lighted to attract the passer by, men sit in front of hotels and saloons and smoke and talk politics and agriculture, while through the residence streets, families sit on their verandas and enjoy social intercourse with their neighbors and among themselves. There is a quiet twilight life to be had in Reno, which is half of life itself. It imparts a physical and mental repose not otherwise entirely attainable, and is a luxury that is denied to dwellers in large cities. On the business streets there is no noise, but the passer by simply hears the click of the billiard balls in the saloons and occasional source of hilarity. Gambling is carried on in most of the saloons, but no one would be aware of the fact without seeking the games. Take it all in all we claim that for peace, quiet and good order Reno takes the cake.

Riding the Brake.

At an early hour yesterday morning a young Reno doctor of medicine might have been seen seated with a lady in one of those new-fangled two wheeled carts rapidly moving out of town on the Mayberry road. Saugly ensconced upon the step which swings underneath the carriage seat was a small boy, unobserved by the occupants of the vehicle, apparently enjoying the stolen ride. Riding the brake-beam of a railroad car is an event of common occurrence and is indulged in by young and old, but swinging to the axle of a two wheeled gig is something entirely new.

If the doctor should hear his conversation reported in full he will have learned a useful lesson; talk low, look out for sleepers and whip behind.

Virginia's Celebration.

The Virginia City people have made extensive preparations for to-day's celebration. There will be a fine military display, the firemen will parade, some attractive novelties will be introduced in the procession and there will doubtless be a large turnout. The streets on the line of march have been profusely decorated. Literary exercises will be held at Cooper Hall where Col. H. Shaw, President of the Day, will deliver the opening address, which will be followed by the customary literary and musical exercises. Thomas Cavanagh will be the poet, and F. M. Huffaker the orator of the day. In the evening there will be a display of fireworks from the summit of Mt. Davidson.

Show Your Colors.

There was a noticeable dearth of flags, bunting and other Fourth of July ornaments around the town last evening. This is not due to any lack of patriotism, which no doubt exists here in unlimited stores, but as we have no celebration, and are making no great amount of noise, it is simply lying dormant.

Probably a good many citizens will hang out their banners this morning.

District Court.

In the case of Henry Stephens vs. his creditors an order was made granting a final discharge to the petitioner.

In the divorce case of McIntosh vs. McIntosh, an order was made requiring the plaintiff to pay into Court $50 per month for support of the defendant and her children during the pendency of the suit, and also $100 counsel fee.

Officers Installed.

On Wednesday evening Truckee Lodge, No. 14, I. O. O. F., installed the following officers for the ensuing term: J. V. Peers, Noble Grand; J. G. Becker, Vice Grand; F. C. Updike, Recording Secretary; C. W. Jones, Permanent Secretary; R. W. Ash, Treasurer.

Who Found the Can?

A cane, with a silver handle representing a horn, was lost at Steamboat Springs or on the V. & T. R. R. train last Tuesday. The owner will pay the full value of the cane upon its return to W. M. Havenor, conductor on the V. & T. R. R.

Our Wadsworth neighbors will note to-day by joining in a picnic at Jake Howard's ranch on the river a few miles below the town.

John Kelly, Superintendent of the Bodie mine, passed west last evening.

The Comstock miners disbursed $38,275 25 yesterday for wages.

Mrs. Holley, of Oakland, is at the Golden Eagle.

Alvaro Evans is back from the Bay.

New Governor of Washington Territory.

The New York Herald's Washington special says: The term of Newell, who has been Governor of Washington Territory, having expired, the President has decided to appoint W. C. Squires, of Illinois. Squires is an old friend and neighbor of Senator Miller, and was appointed at his request. He is an Ohio man. He removed to Herkimer county and married the daughter of Remington, the well-known manufacturer of firearms. Squires has large property interests in Washington Territory, and at present is residing at Seattle.

Eli Dennis and Reed, of San Diego, passed west last evening en route from the Republican Convention. Dennis thinks Cleveland will be the Democratic nominee.

David Utley and Mrs. Charlotte James were married yesterday.

J. J. Webster is in from Long Valley.

She said, "Ob, yes, I am very fond of little boys," and as a snowball struck in the back of her neck, she added, "I feel as though I could eat a couple of them this minute, boiled."

Advice to Mortuary.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it.

It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, eases wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. feb. 21.-swi-lyr

When the blood moves sluggishly in the veins because it is loaded with impurities, an alternative is needed, as this condition of the vital fluid cannot last long without serious results. There is nothing better than Ayer's Sarsaparilla to purify the blood and impart energy to the system.

It Seems to Satisfy.

A family want, and I wonder how we got along without Parker's Ginger Tonic. It cured me of nervous prostration, and I have used it since for all sorts of complaints in our family. Mrs. Jines, Albany.

Strength for Mind and Body.

There is more strength restoring power in a bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic than in a bushel of malt or a gallon of milk. This explains why invalids find it such a wonderful invigorant for mind and body.

Cleanliness and purity make Parker's Hair Balsam the favorite for restoring the youthful color to gray hair.

FROM THE PRESIDENT OF BAYLOR UNIVERSITY.

"Independence, Texas, Sept. 25, 1882.

Gentlemen:

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Has been used in my household for three reasons:—

1st. To prevent falling out of the hair.

2d. To prevent too rapid change of color.

3d. As a dressing.

It has given entire satisfaction in every instance. Yours respectfully,

WM. CAREY CRANE."

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is entirely free from uncleanly, dangerous, or injurious substances. It prevents the hair from turning gray, restores gray hair to its original color, prevents baldness, preserves the hair and promotes its growth, cures dandruff and all diseases of the hair and scalp, and is, at the same time, a very superior and desirable dressing.
